July 24, 1868.—On

VIRGINIA.

The political situation remains unchanged in Virginia. Many persons favor an election for President in November, whilst the ablest men in the State counsel obedience to military rule. These men very properly argue that even should we carry the State for Seymour and Blair, the effect would damage our interests in other States beyond what we would gain by the vote in Virginia.

General Stoneman has returned and made some new assignments. Sub-districts have been consolidated, and the number of officers on duty in Virginia greatly reduced. The following are some of the changes announced:

Twenty-second Division—Bedford and Campbell counties.

Twenty-third Division—Amherst, Nelson and Appomattox counties; and Twenty-fifth Division—Floyd, Allegheny, Gray and Roanoke counties—Brevet Major Gen. O. B. Wilcox, colonel Twenty-ninth United States infantry, commanding post of Lynchburg.

Twenty-fourth Division—Hickory, High, and Rockbridge counties—First Lieutenant Stephen K. Mahon, regiment United States infantry, commanding post at Lexington.

Twenty-sixth Division—Pennsylvania, Henry, Patrick and Franklin counties—Second Lieutenant Augustus R. Egbert, Twenty-first United States infantry, Station—Danville.

Twenty-seventh Division—Montgomery, Bland, Tazewell, Pulaski and Giles counties; Twenty-eighth Division—Carroll, Floyd, and Grayson counties—Second Lieutenant Stephen K. Mahon, regiment United States infantry, commanding post at Lexington.

Twenty-ninth Division—Wythe, Russell, Smyth, Buchanan and Washington counties; and Thirtieth Division—Lee, Scott, and Wise counties—Lieutenant Colonel Henry A. Hamblight, captain Twenty-ninth United States infantry, commanding post of Marion.
